Austin is jailed for 8 years

Gregory Robert Austin faces eight years in jail for sexual assault and perjury.

The 28-year-old Minden man was sentenced last Tuesday after pleading guilty to seven counts of sexual assault, two counts of invitation to sexual touching and one count of perjury.

Austin pleaded guilty to all charges when he appeared in court on November 18. He was in court again on November 24 for sentencing.

Austin was ordered to spend five years in jail on the first count of sexual assault and five years concurrent on each of the remaining sex offences. He was sentenced to an additional three years on the charge of perjury.

Santa's visit

Great weather, outstanding costumes and floats, marching bands and a large crowd — what more can you ask for? The fourth annual Minden Community Santa Claus Parade had all the elements of a great parade. The parade route from the arena right through town was lined with cheering spectators. Saturday's parade capped off a weekend filled with activity in Minden. The town was lit up until midnight Friday as shoppers took advantage of the bargains in the Moonlight Madness Sale. Following the parade, the Kinettes decorated a large Christmas tree on Main Street, while almost 300 children lined up to meet Santa at the fire hall. Shown here, Santa and his good friend Brad Trumbull wave to the crowds as their sled sails through the village.

Minden limits Nevada sales to local groups

Minden Council's reluctance to open new venues for Nevada ticket sales held firm Thursday when a second request from the Kidney Foundation for an in-store outlet was turned away.

Five community organizations in Minden already sell Nevada tickets to raise funds, said Reeve Bern Berry. These funds are used for community projects. He said ticket sales by other organizations are bound to cut into the sales by the community organizations.

Representatives of the Kidney Foundation were asking council for permission to sell Nevada tickets at The Hub, a convenience store at the intersection of Highways 35 and 118. Proceeds from the sales would be placed in a trust fund that would provide assistance to people in the district who are suffering from kidney ailments.

A month ago council rejected a similar request to establish an outlet at a store in Ingoldsbay. Council's justification for the rejection was the same: new outlets will ultimately water down the sales by existing organizations.

"There's only so many dollars around," Berry said Thursday. He said it is difficult to turn down a request from worthy organizations such as the Kidney Foundation. However, he said the five community organizations depend on their ticket sales to continue to provide services. He also noted that the Kidney Foundation received funding from the United Way and through other means of fundraising.

Minden Minor Hockey, Rotary, the Curling Club, the Lions and the Legion currently sell Nevada tickets to their patrons. More than 85 per cent of that money is returned to the community through various events, projects and donations.

Relief in sight for overcrowded school

Board decides immediate help is needed at Gooderham School

by Andy Holloway

Accommodation problems at Gooderham Elementary School have forced the county's school board to buy a portable for the small school.

The decision, made at last Wednesday's board meeting, will cost the board around $20,000 for the portable and another $5,000 to set it up, Business Administrator Jim Bradley told trustees.

"We are in a position, according to our business administrator, to buy this portable from our fiscal reserves," said Education Director Brad Saunders.

Saunders said the board expects a budget surplus this year and that extra money would just be going into the board's fiscal reserves for future use anyway.

The need for a portable is a result of trying to accommodate special needs children who need to be taken out of class on a regular basis. Currently, the school has one very high special needs child attending half time. That student is expected to be enrolled full-time in January and another student who has cerebral palsy is expected to enter kindergarten next September. Robinson said there were 15 identified special needs students at the school, 10 of whom have to be taken out of the classroom occasionally.

The board had hoped to "limp through" this year before making any decision to increase accommodations, said Saunders. However there is an "extreme need" to act now.

The board was told that French classes are taking place in the principal's office, the library is in an old storage room and classes have taken place in the staff lounge and even in the washrooms on occasion.

"All the classrooms are in use, so when a student is taken out, classes take place in the hall behind dividers," said Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson.

"It's a situation which I don't think the staff should have to deal with."

Cardiff trustee Lloyd Griffiths was more harsh when he summed up the situation.

"It's a disgrace that we are asking teachers to teach there and to do a decent job with the accommodations they have," said Griffiths.

Next year, the school will also have a grade six class which will boost enrolment by another 10 students. For the past several years students graduated in grade five and either went to J.D. Hodgson or Archie Stouffer for grade six.

It was suggested that the school not bring in grade sixes next year because of the lack of space. "It doesn't seem to me that the school gives those students proper services," said Dysart Trustee Leonard Salvatori. "I think you're compounding the problem by putting grade sixes in there."

However, Glamorgan trustee Craig Pettit, whose township contains Gooderham, said, "No thank you." He added students are not giving anything up by going to a small school like Gooderham.

The proposal to buy a portable was requested by Pettit who said time was a big factor. A motion to refer an administrative report regarding the Accommodation problems to the Management Committee for consideration was narrowly defeated.

A motion was then presented to the board to buy a portable as soon as possible. Just one of the 12 trustees present voted against the purchase. Stanhope's LeRoy Eager said he wanted to wait until the addition at Archie Stouffer was completed and move one of that school's portables to Gooderham.

However, Bradley said those portables will probably have to go to the high school to handle their future accommodation problems.

Earlier in the meeting, a motion was also passed that the board examine the accommodation problems at Gooderham with regard to high needs students.

Resolution calls for age limit restriction for seniors buildings

Minden is joining in the call to reverse a provincial initiative that opens seniors apartment buildings to all age groups.

The Ontario Housing Corporation is in the process of lifting the "seniors" restriction on all its housing projects. Eligibility for residence in these buildings is now being extended to Ontario residents of any age.

The Sunrise Apartments in Minden fall under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Housing Corporation. Opening these apartments to all ages will be unfair to the current residents, said Councillor Gerald Rome. He noted, though, that some exceptions to the age restrictions have already been accepted.

Councillor Jean Anthon said certain seniors may agree with the idea of lifting the age limitation. However, others may object, she said.

Council was responding to a resolution from the Village of Cardinal.

The change has recently been introduced to the seniors building in Cardinal, says the village's Deputy Reeve, Richard Patrick. He says the municipality and the police have already received numerous complaints from the seniors in the building.

"We feel as a municipality these circumstances no longer allow our seniors to feel safe and secure and no longer provide them with the quality of life they deserve. We would not like to see our parents put into this type of environment," he writes.

"These people moved into these facilities expecting to live in a secure building with people of their own age only to see a policy change."

In response to the letter, Minden Council passed a resolution Thursday endorsing Cardinal's stand on the issue.

Dec. 6 vigil remembers abuse victims

A special service in remembrance of the women killed in the "Montreal Massacre," is being held on December 6 at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden.

"First mourn, then work for change," is the theme of the vigil. People are invited to join in the service in memory of all women who have been victims of male violence.

The service will be preceded by a screening of "After the Montreal Massacre" and women's readings.

The event runs from noon until 1:30 p.m. The service starts at 12:45 p.m.

Ridgewood News Students provide activities update

As you are probably aware, Ridgewood Public School opened its doors to almost 400 students of northern Victoria County this September. We just had our official opening recently. Some of the students of Ridgewood will be providing you with coverage of events taking place as the year unfolds. This is the first in a series of articles written by these students. We hope to keep you informed on a regular basis.

Remembrance Day - On November 11, there was a Remembrance Day ceremony held at the new Ridgewood Public School. The staff and students represented the new school as we listened to a speech that was originally delivered by the late Alan Brown, a well loved veteran from Kinmount. The whole school was impressed by the ceremony. The school thanks the Coboconk Legion and Mrs. Featherstone. (by Aaron Crowder and Adam Longhurst)

Soccer - on November 5, Ridgewood's junior mixed soccer team qualified for the Victoria County soccer tournament. They played very well, especially for a new school. A special thanks to Eric Logan who played very well. They went to the County tournament and came in second. They beat Ops in the semi-finals and lost a very close game to Lady Eaton. They did extremely well. A special thanks to Mr. R. Caputo for being such a good coach. (by Alison Watson and Ralph Coleman)

Local groups rely on Nevada sales

From the figures provided by the Kidney Foundation, Councillor Gerald Rome noted that almost half the money that might be raised is used for administrative and marketing costs.

With an unemployment rate in excess of 30 per cent, area residents don't have as much loose change to spend, said Berry. Meanwhile, local organizations strive to maintain their services and they rely on Nevada ticket sales to assist them.

Brock Laws then made the argument that sales through his store would not affect sales by other groups. He said most of his customers are not local residents. The store's location at the four corners in Carnarvon caters largely to the travelling public, he said.

Council ultimately decided to postpone its decision in order to provide members with the opportunity to delve further into the matter.

Highway traffic problems worry area residents

High speed and poor lighting need to be addressed

In an continued effort to improve highway traffic safety through Minden, the municipality will again be asking the Ministry of Transportation for help.

Minden council heard safety concerns from two people during last Thursday's meeting. One was concerned with traffic on the Highway 35 by-pass and the other expressed concern about lighting at the intersection of Highways 118 and 35.

Mai-Liis Virak wrote council a letter outlining her concerns. Since her family bought property on South Lake Road in 1961, Virak said she has noted increased traffic on Highway 35, particularly through the village.

"Obviously something needs to be done," Virak wrote. "It is quite inconceivable that regardless of increased vehicular traffic volume, nothing of substance has been done during the last 30 years."

With speeding traffic, five intersections and no traffic lights, the situation is "life threatening," she said.

Council recently asked the ministry if steps can be taken to improve safety on the by-pass. Although ministry is not yet willing to allow traffic lights to be located on the highway, preliminary approval has been granted for a reduced speed limit. One department of the ministry has okayed a speed limit of 70 km/hr on the by-pass and has now passed it on to another branch for further consideration.

In addition to traffic lights and speed limits, Virak has asked council to consider closing the Prince Street intersection. The idea, however, was only briefly addressed Thursday. Reeve Bern Berry said he is not in favour of closing the entrance.

In response to another request for improved conditions on the highway, council will be asking the ministry for permission to install street lighting at the intersection of Highways 118 and 35.

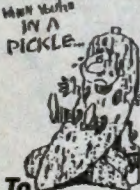

The request came from Brock Law, who operates a variety store and service station at the intersection. He said the intersection can be dangerous, especially at night after the stores have closed. When the stores at the corner turn out their lights at 10 p.m. the intersection is very dark, he said.

There is a yellow caution light at the intersection, but Law said the visibility is still very poor.

Berry said a traffic study done at the corner showed no need for traffic lights. However, he said it may be possible to get street lights there to improve visibility.

Autumn Davis recognized for volunteer achievement

Autumn Davis' commitment to organizing Minden's highly successful community picnic has earned her an Outstanding Canada 125 Volunteer Award.

The award is in recognition of the volunteers who so generously offered their time to ensure that Canada 125 events came to fruition. They have been presented to 50 of the 450,000 volunteers in Ontario who have staged some 11,000 events and projects in celebration of the 125th anniversary of Confederation.

For Davis, the award recognizes her efforts to stage the community picnic in mid June. Thousands of people turned out to the Minden Fair Grounds for a day filled with family-oriented activities.

Although Davis is the recipient of the award, she says the entire community shares in this honour. Without the support of the community -- everyone who volunteered their time and talent -- this event would not have been such an overwhelming success. Davis gives special credit to Carol Myles, who provided tremendous support in this effort. She also says Lisa Connelly deserves much credit for her efforts in putting on the Canada Day celebration.

Canada 125 established the Volunteer Recognition Program to recognize outstanding volunteers throughout 1992. Under the patronage of the Governor General of Canada, this program acknowledges exceptional volunteers through community and national level awards.

Davis was invited to the awards ceremony at the Royal Botanical Gardens in Burlington last week, but was unable to attend. However, her plaque sent to her by courier and arrived later in the week.

A CHRISTMAS STORY

A timeless performance of

by Susan Wilson

If you don't already have your tickets to Camelot tucked away in your wallet, you may just miss out on one of the best shows to be seen in these parts. This production, mounted by the Highlands Little Theatre and 18 months in the making, offers enterprising direction, first-rate music, and strong performances from everyone. Some of the five shows are already sold out and, by the time you read this, the rest may be too.

The story of Camelot is the best-known modern expression of the legend of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table. Retold by Mallory in the 14th century and Tennyson in the 19th, this undying tale dates back 1,500 years to the time when the Romans were withdrawing from the outposts of their empire (of which Britain was one) to defend the city of Rome from the relentless attacks of the Goths and Visigoths and other "barbarians".

(One recent theory about the source of the legend says that, in the vacuum created by the retreating Romans, one Briton rallied other island leaders around him to create a new kingdom dedicated to justice. Among their goals, they strove to maintain the equal rights their womenfolk had traditionally enjoyed against the patriarchal, hierarchical onslaught of the church. They lost this struggle, along with all the others, and their attempt was remembered in a debased form as chivalry, which reduced women to helpless creatures in need of all-encompassing protection.)

For all its beautiful songs and funny lines, Camelot is, at its heart, a tragedy. Arthur's vision of a society in which might is not right, but is used for right, a society ruled by law and justice, is poisoned by the capricious evil of one man and, overnight, all returns to blood-letting, vengeance, and mayhem.

Director Curtis Eastmure has told the tale with a sure hand, making excellent use of the uninspiring space offered by the auditorium at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. He has shown considerable imagination in the use of the forestage, the curtain, lighting, projections, and indeed the whole length of the auditorium. And his cast has lived up to his creativity.

The three leading actors — John Miller as Arthur, Lindsey Coates as Guenevere, and Wayne Cooper as Lancelot — capably carry the weight of the show, ably abetted by a large cast of supporting characters.

Miller's relaxed, naturalistic acting style and pleasing singing voice are well suited to the squire who became king by drawing the sword Excalibur from its stone. In the several speeches throughout the play in which Arthur speaks with passion about his vision for a just society that does not resort to war to solve its problems, Miller is very effective, delivering the words with kingly strength and conviction. On the other hand, he is especially poignant as Arthur realizes Lancelot and Guenevere's attraction to each other and, after a moment's relapse into a desire for vengeance, understands that this is a test tailor-made for his beliefs.

Lindsey Coates is Guenevere personified: tall and blond, with a manner at once warm and regal. Her fine singing voice and graceful dancing only enhanced a fine all-round performance. In some songs, one could hear clear echoes of Julie Andrews, who created the role on Broadway. (As far as can be ascertained, this is Coates' first appearance on a local stage. Where has this woman been hiding?)

Wayne Cooper brings a wonderful energy to his role as Lancelot du Lac, the French knight who answers Arthur's call for knights to join him at the Round Table. In addition, to his talents as an actor and singer, Cooper's career as a teacher of French stands him in good stead in offering us a Lancelot with a credible French accent; he easily transcends what could have been a caricature. It's a bonus that Cooper's own clean-cut features are perfectly suited to the knight who is "so poisonously good, he probably walked across the Channel".

John Miller as King Arthur, provides a dramatic portrayal of a ruler whose noble plans are crushed by greed and ambition.

Everyone in the supporting cast deserves commendation. Joel Levis is a wonderfully blustery King Pellinore, a sort of Colonel Blimp in armour ("a cartoon of a man," says Guenevere; "a delicious fellow," says Arthur). As the aging Merlin, Arthur's teacher and sorcerer who lives life backwards, remembering the future, Glen Carter is creaky and witty in equal parts. Doug Gifford is delightfully "skunky" (to quote Pellinore) as Mordred, a man as poisonously bad as Lancelot is the reverse; Gifford mugs and camps his way happily through a role that was written to be over-acted. Lisa Kowaltschuk is suitably dramatic as Morgan le Fay, the sluttish, self-indulgent beauty who sells out Arthur and his dreams for a tractor-trailer load of candy.

The rest of the cast — 20 in all, plus Bandid, playing Horrid the Dog — rise to the high standard set for them. The youngest performers — Jocelyn Eastmure and Justin Murray as the Pages and Ian MacKenzie as Tom of Warwick — were all at their ease on stage and acquitted themselves admirably.

Without exception, the performers clearly enunciated their words, both spoken and sung, making things easy for the audience and attesting to Melissa Stephens' hard work as musical director. Stephens was also responsible for designing and making the wide variety of costumes. It was especially gratifying that Stephens and her crew of seamstresses took the trouble to make a different costume for each of Guenevere's many scenes. It assisted immeasurably in our conviction that she really was a queen.

Special mention must be made of the sets created under the direction of Deborah Neve. To the left of the stage a full-sized tree was constructed with branches reaching to the ceiling. The tree was a marvel of engineering, as not only did it bring the forest onto the stage, it provided a perch for John Miller, as young King Arthur, to watch the arrival of his bride to be.

A castle turret dominated the other side of the stage providing a towering platform for a number of crucial scenes in the production.

Realism was further enhanced with swords and armour created by local craftspeople. The helmets and breastplates looked authentic and demonstrated the depth of talent available in

(more on page 10)

In a poignant moment following a jousting tournament, Queen Guenevere, (Lindsey Coates), and Lancelot du Lac, (Wayne Cooper), realize for the first time they are falling in love. The affair will ultimately lead to the destruction of the rule of King Arthur and the ideals of the Round Table.

Pattern of excellence

Looking for some good news?

May we suggest you try a bit of live theatre, especially the latest production of the Highlands Little Theatre company, the musical Camelot.

At first glance, the story told in the musical appears to provide little in the way of an upbeat theme. The central character, King Arthur, who attempts to bring justice, fairness and a code of civilized conduct to his kingdom, finds his ideals crumbling about him as they are assailed by greed, treachery and a lust for power. However, one small ray of hope emerges as the play reaches its climax. A young lad, imbued with the king's noble ideals, promises to keep them alive and help them to grow.

To a degree, the ancient tale of King Arthur parallels much of what our own community has endured over the past few years. As a nation, Canada has been battered by conflicting forces that would tear it apart, see it fly into little pieces. The nation has been put at risk as a result of a quest for more power and for a xenophobic fear of what is fair and just for some other citizen. In much the same way, the sense of community within the county has been assailed, pitting faction against faction, resulting only in bitterness and distrust.

No, the answers to our problems, nationally or closer to home, cannot be found on the stage of a musical production. But perhaps we can find a lesson in the story's message of hope. No matter how bleak the present appears, if we keep alive those solid qualities on which we strive to build our community and nation, then perhaps some day they will flourish and thrive.

On a more practical level, the company which brought the production of Camelot to life offers a shining example of what can be accomplished in a community effort. Talents and skills have been tapped from all corners of the county to create this brief, stunning piece of entertainment. Months of work and dedication are evident in the pride and exuberance the cast and crew bring to their task—and in the response of the community in return.

Look around you. There are countless other groups, perhaps with not as high a profile as this, but vital nonetheless, whose efforts are in similar fashion, knitting our community into a single tapestry.

Find a thread—be a part of the pattern.

County Warden Simmons strikes back

Editor:

If anyone has followed Russ Duhaime's career at the Minden Times, you will notice that this is the third time he has belittled the Warden and the process by which a councillor becomes a Warden in Haliburton County. I will try and address these two concerns and inform the public why I am responding to this editorial.

I am insulted that Mr. Duhaime thinks the Wardenship is "just a plum" and "take one more step and add some legitimacy, honour and achievement to the Wardenship" questions his integrity as editor of this newspaper.

To correct the editorial on facts, it was not Snowdon Township's turn for the "head of the table". During the last four years that I have been a county councillor, it has never been discussed "who's turn" it was to be Warden.

If the Warden's position was a full time position like our neighbouring counties and at a salary between $30,000-$60,000 per year, then the election process works well because councillors vie for the position every year.

In Haliburton, because the duties and obligations are the same as the Wardens in neighbouring counties and the salary is between $5,000-$8,000 per year, each of the seventeen councillors has to ask themselves three important questions:

1. Do I have the commitment to do the duties and obligations of Warden for one year?
2. Is my family willing to sacrifice a fatherless (or motherless) family for one year?
3. Will my professional job obligations allow such a commitment?

These three questions would eliminate some of the councillors and not all seventeen councillors would want to be Warden.

"The highest political office" is open to every county council member. They are qualified because the people of Haliburton County used their judgement in selecting these seventeen to represent them at the municipal and county level.

Haliburton County has for the past four years used the lobby approach which is very viable.

In closing, I put myself in the same clone as all who volunteer for the betterment of others, the commitment to fulfil a need.

Warden George Simmons.

History of Highland Road long and varied

Note: The following letter was inspired by a recent request for a name change to Highland Road in Stanhope Township.

Editor:

The story of Highland Road goes back a long way. The part of it near the present

Highway 35 was once known as the Pioneer Road. It went north from lot 5, con. 6 in through what is now the Hiskconnell property on the lake side and out again across the present highway into the woods and followed the valley there up to what is now Highland Road at the top of the first big hill from the highway looking south, then down to the bottom of the hill and across the old bridge at Buttermilk Falls.

This bridge is on the open concession line between concession 6 and 7 in Stanhope. The old road wound around some rocks at the bottom of the hill and then into a swampy area and up a ramp onto the old Highway 35.

Highland Road itself was built by Dr. Agnes Jamieson and her associates and Norman and Violet Wallace, who owned lot 13, con. 6 and part of con. 7. Together they built the road in 1946 as far as the Hawk River. The next spring Mac Irwin, a member of Dr. Jamieson's group finished the other end, leading out to the Hawk Lake Road.

This was all done privately. Dr. Jamieson and her friends owned quite a lot of lakeshore beyond the Wallace property. The Wallaces set up a housekeeping cottage business on their property. The new road was named Highland Road by John Hewitt, who owned a store at Buttermilk Falls.

In the early 1970's the township of Stanhope took over the road and paved it. They improved the big hill by using dynamite. This took the road closer to the lake just behind the Henderson cottage.

In doing this, they got into some problems. The explosion blew a great pile of rocks onto the sand beach at the bottom and some went through the Henderson cottage, right to the ground. It took some time to get this all settled.

Later, I got permission from Mr. Fred Harrison to turn the road straight out to the highway from the bottom of the hill. I built this part myself.

Highland Road is now all paved. There is a mail route on it and school buses using it. It's used as a short cut to Highway 35 by people on the Hawk Lakes.

I am assured by the township that the name Highland Road will remain in use.

Norman Wallace.

Why is county defending suspected perjurer asks reader

Editor:

How can County Council justify spending taxpayer dollars on a lawyer to defend Hyland Crest director of nursing Phyllis Hiltz-Bontje who has been charged with perjury?

Does this mean that ANY county employee who is criminally charged will get the same deal (or even any county resident?)

Charges of perjury are NOT laid lightly. To intentionally lie under oath is indeed criminal. It seems to me that if this woman is found guilty it will leave council in a rather embarrassing position.

I remember a few years ago, when a first-class director of nursing was hounded from Hyland Crest for what, in my opinion, was a much lesser offence.

Having a charge of perjury laid against the director of nursing at Hyland Crest suggests some kind of cover-up. Just what is being covered up (if anything) and at whose instigation and why am I and my fellow taxpayers being expected to pay for it?

Northern status questioned

Editor:

Re: County becoming part of northern Ontario.

For many years I have promoted Haliburton County through advertising for The Loop and Birch Villa Resort Ltd., along with many of the other tourist operators, realtors and business people. We have tried to convince people we are in southern central Ontario and not in northern Ontario as most city people think. Ask them where Haliburton is. A lot of them will tell you we are north of Huntsville and too far away to visit for just a weekend. After all of our advertising to get known as a tourist and retirement county in southern Ontario Haliburton County Council wants us to become part of northern Ontario. Why? Just so we as a county can get bigger provincial grants. Forget about the tourist dollar. I for one say we can not afford to become part of northern Ontario for what ever the purpose.

I ask that you get in touch with your council and see where they stand on this issue for it will affect us all in the end. Our logging is gone, should we now give up our tourists as well.

Thanks

Donald Outram

Seals not to blame for Canada's low cod stocks

Editor:

I am writing to appeal to the many thousands of animal lovers among your readers. You and they are probably aware of the campaign IFAW (Canada), the International Fund for Animal Welfare, is waging in regard to the cod crisis and renewed calls, in some quarters, for a resumption of a mass harp seal kill off the east coast. Our television and newspaper adverts recently appeared across Canada.

The seals are being blamed for the cod shortage even though scientists agree that the seal's diet consists of less than 1% cod. Studies also show that the seal population is expanding very slowly, if at all.

The seals are being used as scapegoats for the overfishing that caused the crisis. Earlier this year, Fisheries Minister John Crosbie suggested that 500,000 seals could be killed. With the present cod fishing moratorium pro-sealing forces will pressure for a mass slaughter of baby seals.

Such a slaughter would be unjustified and unforgivable.

It would also harm the seal watching tourism that currently produces more than $1 million a year for Canada.

What we need is a Marine Mammal Protection Act, like the United States and New Zealand, not a renewed slaughter.

Sincerely,

Paul Seigel

Shop now: Just 134 years until Doomsday

Here's a sober little factoid to make you spray your morning coffee all over the breakfast table: life on earth has 134 years to go.

If you want to be absolutely precise — it has 133 years, seven months and two weeks as of New Years Day.

The official word is that on August 14, 2126, the orbit of Periodic Asteroid Swift-Tuttle will intersect with Earth's orbit. That's the way astronomers explain it. More bluntly, the experts are saying that on August 14, 2126 a ball of rock and ice three miles across is going to smash into our planet.

Three miles wide — heck, that's not very big. Will we even notice?

We'll notice.

"It will create an impact force of 20 million megatons" says Duncan Steel, an astronomer at an observatory in Sydney, Australia.

Twenty million megatons is kind of abstract for we non-astronomers. To get an idea of the impact, think of the atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima.

Now multiply that one point six million times.

Even if Swift-Tuttle was half the size it is now, we'd be toast if it hit our planet. "A one to two-kilometre object hitting the Earth would wipe out at least 75 percent of mankind" says Steel "and an impact in the ocean is no less

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

dangerous than an impact on land."

If it's any consolation, we've been through this doomsday scenario before. Several times, as a matter of fact.

That's the good news. The bad news is that, each time it's happened most life on earth has been destroyed. Astronomers believe that the Earth gets pated with an asteroid this large about once every million years. Many experts assert that it was an asteroid about the size of Swift-Tuttle that wiped out the dinosaurs. Back in 1908 an asteroid streaked through the atmosphere and slammed into Siberia, levelling every tree for hundreds of miles. They reckon that asteroid was about the size of a largish bungalow.

So we're in trouble, folks — or rather our children's children's children are in trouble.

Of course 134 years is a long time. A hundred and thirty-four years ago we didn't have automobiles, electric lights or telephones, much less lunar landings, space shuttles and Canadarm.

We're a brainy bunch of bipeds here on earth. We can probably come up with something.

Maybe we ought to dust off dopey old Ronald Reagan's Star Wars plan — you know, where he was going to fight the evil Russian Empire in outer space?

Where's Obi Ben Kenobi when you really need him? Maybe NASA can come up with some fancy technological fly swatter — a Robo Designated Hitter that can stroke Swift-Tuttle over the galaxy centrefield wall.

Maybe their calculations are wrong. Maybe tomorrow, astronomer Duncan Steel will appear on Prime Time news all red-faced to announce that he'd forgotten to "carry the seven" in his addition and that Swift-Tuttle will miss the earth by several billion light years.

Maybe...Maybe...

But on the other hand, maybe not.

Maybe they're right. And maybe there's nothing anyone can do. Maybe that's how this particular chapter of eternity gets written.

How's that old T.S. Eliot poem go?

This is the way the world ends.

This is the way the world ends.

Not with a bang but a...

Swift-Tuttle.

They've got to do something about that dumb name.

Santa Claus to visit Kinmount

by Jerry Grozelle

The Christmas spirit is building with less than a month until jolly old Saint Nick will be making his annual visit.

Those who would like to catch an early glimpse of Santa might want to mark December 13 on their calendars. That's when the white-bearded gentleman dressed in red will be in Kinmount for the seventh annual Santa Claus Parade.

A variety of entries are already booked for the parade in Kinmount. Parade Marshal Frank Thom is expecting between 25 and 32 businesses and organizations to participate and there is still room for more.

"If anybody else is interested, I'd be glad to hear from them," he said. "We're hoping it will be a little better than last year."

Thom can be reached at 488-2917.

One of the popular entries that will be returning is the Kawartha Cavaliers.

The Kinmount Legion and the Kinmount Civic Action Group are the sponsors and organizers of the parade.

The course will be the same as last year, starting at Rokeby Lumber and making its way to the Legion.

Dianne Austin, who is helping out with the organization of the parade, said that one float that will be missed this year is the school float.

"But," she said, "the kids will be involved in other ways."

As usual, Santa Claus will be at the end of the parade. He will be in a horse-drawn sleigh.

"The reindeer will need to save all of their energy for the long journey on Christmas Eve," Santa said.

The Kinmount Santa Claus parade will start at 2 p.m. on Sunday, December 13.

High school co-op program lets students try out career

by Oliver Greer

For Haliburton Highlands Secondary School student Joanne Smith, the school's co-op program is giving her a chance to take a look at what her chosen career is really like before committing herself to post secondary education.

Smith says that at Magic Touch in Haliburton, she is gaining valuable experience by watching and assisting the trained estheticians do makeovers, manicures, pedicures and various other services.

So far Smith has done manicures and worked with acrylic nails but has received instruction on most of the other services performed by the business.

This experience, Smith says, will hopefully help her with admittance to college and give her a head start because she will have already learned and performed most of the skills being taught.

Co-op Coordinator Chris Duchene feels it is important for the community to know that the co-op program is a training program and does not fill legitimate work opportunities in the community.

Smith says that this type of hands-on learning is more interesting than learning from a book and will probably be more helpful in her chosen career.

The experience gained in co-op may even help when looking for a job after her education is complete.

Another service that co-op provides for the student is that by taking only half a day of in-school courses it greatly reduces their workload while still allowing them to earn four credits.

Smith, however, says that possibly the most important aspect of the co-op program is that it allows the students to see what their chosen career is really like while there is still time to change their mind.

Students band against drunk driving

by Oliver Greer

The Ontario Students Against Impaired Driving (OSAID) organization at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School is constantly working to raise the awareness not only of the school but also of the community to the problem of drunk driving.

Julie-Anne Adam, one of the OSAID organizers, has been with the organization for the past three years. Adam says that the organization tries to get their message across without preaching because ultimately the choice will still be up to the individual.

The group tries to get their message across by holding assemblies at the high school, holding fundraisers and several other techniques.

A recent assembly featured speeches by reformed drug abusers, a teenager who had been involved in a serious impaired driving accident, a group of rap musicians and a singing duet. The goal of the assembly says Adam was to raise the awareness of the students in an upbeat and interesting manner that young people could associate with.

During Drug Awareness Week OSAID handed out buttons at the school bearing an anti-drug slogan. Adam says she was surprised and pleased with the number of students who wore their buttons all week to show their support for the anti-drug campaign.

Right now OSAID is running it's annual red ribbon campaign to raise awareness in the community. Red plastic ribbons are attached to the aerial or door handles of vehicles to show that the drivers are opposed to impaired driving. Adam says that this campaign is having a great deal of success and will be continuing until the beginning of January.

OSAID also tries to warn younger, grade school students of the perils of impaired driving.

Even though they don't have their licences it's never too early to learn about the problem says Adam.

The organization is trying to achieve this goal through a poster contest and by presenting a play for the younger students.

OSAID is also planning to hold a Christmas raffle. In past years the prizes for the raffle were centered more towards an adult age group. This year the prizes will be donated by local stores and businesses and will try to appeal to a greater range of age groups.

Although OSAID is a relatively small group of ten students, Lisa Ranson, Tiffany Orpana, Wendy McAlister, Cindy-Jo Bonderanco, Christy Ackerblade, Tracy Hartwick, Kim Harding, Cassie Wayrich, Carla Chubb and Adam, They try to show the community the dangers of impaired driving and Adam says that she feels they make a positive difference.

Townships get aid to help reduce waste

Two Haliburton county municipalities will be receiving grant money to help with their composting programs.

Glamorgan and Minden will use the money towards the purchase of 3,300 composters. A total of $108,167 will be spent in local townships for environmental initiatives.

"I am very pleased to see the townships joining many other communities across Ontario to reduce and recycle significant quantities of waste," said area MPP Dennis Drainville.

The townships will also devote part of the funds to promotion and public information.

The grants are part of a Ministry of the Environment program backing municipal composting plans. The ministry pays 67 per cent of the start-up costs and 50 per cent of any advertising campaigns that make the public aware the composters are for sale.

Two weeks ago Stanhope Township sent a proposal to the ministry to purchase 1,300 composters under the same plan.

"Provincial funding to several townships in Victoria-Haliburton for their 3Rs projects shows the Ontario Government's commitment to the Ontario Waste Reduction Action Plan," said Drainville.

More than 800,000 households across Ontario already use composting to reduce food waste by as much as one-third.

Some experts think composting may reduce the amount of garbage heading towards landfill sites by 30 per cent.

Recycling bid denied Ingoldsby dump

Recycling facilities will not be extended to the Ingoldsby landfill site because of the associated costs, Minden Council concluded Thursday.

Councillors discussed the possibility of setting up recycling depots at the Ingoldsby site in response to a petition from Ingoldsby area residents.

The petition notes that recycling facilities are already in place at the Scotch Line Landfill, which demonstrates the municipality's commitment to the three R's. It urges council to extend the same service to the Ingoldsby site.

Commenting on the costs associated with operating a landfill, Reeve Bern Berry said the total budget for the year is more than $111,000. Considering the short distance between the two landfill sites and the potential costs associated with expanded services, councillors were compelled to turn down the request.

School board briefs

Minden trustee becomes second to resign post

by Andy Holloway

The following are brief items discussed at the Haliburton County Board of Education meeting last Tuesday night.

Another trustee resigns

Mary Anne Wilson, a Minden trustee resigned her position effective December 31, 1992. Wilson, a trustee for the area since 1989, is moving out of the county and is therefore forced to resign. Wilson is also the chairperson of the Special Education Advisory Committee.

"She goes ahead in a quiet way and is always prepared and we've appreciated her work," said Cardiff trustee Lloyd Griffiths. Wilson said she had enjoyed working with the board and its members over the past four years.

The resignation was the second in two months. Last month, Bicroft separate school trustee Gayle Murphy resigned due to health problems.

Weathering the weather

Teachers who become stranded by poor weather now have the board's approval to drive or walk to the nearest school to help out there.

Board policy is to keep all schools open during the day in all weather conditions. Even though the buses may not run, some children are dropped off by their parents or walk to school. Therefore, teachers would be needed at the schools if they could get there.

"We're taking a leap of faith," said education director Brad Saunders, "We're dealing with professionals and hope they will act like professionals." Saunders added that the system has not been abused in the past.

The slight change in policy was suggested by the teacher liaison committee said Lutterworth trustee Cheryl Murdoch. Previous board policy stated it was left up to the professional judgement of the individual staff member whether they could drive to their school in inclement weather. Murdoch said teachers still have to make a "supreme effort" to get to their school.

If the weather clears after a teacher gets to a school then the teacher would be expected to move on to his or her assigned school, said Glamorgan trustee Craig Pettit.

Wee win

After being denied last month, approval in principle, was given to Wee Care Day Nursery to run an after-school day-care program at J.D. Hodgson Elementary School.

At last month's board meeting, the proposal was sent back to the Management Committee for further analysis after trustees brought up several questions which were not answered.

Contracts must still be signed before the program can begin which is expected to be on January 1, 1993. The program will run for a six-month trial period ending on June 30. At that time, the program will be re-evaluated before decisions on its future are made.

SEAC grows

The Special Education Activity Committee grew by one member when the board voted to bring in all three candidates for the two open SEAC positions.

Minden trustee Mary Anne Wilson said the move would allow the committee to bring in three "different perspectives" at little cost to the board. Only mileage to and from meetings is paid to committee members.

The extra member brings SEAC to a total of 10 members. Dysart trustee Tim Casey wondered whether increasing membership on the committee would diminish its effectiveness, but Wilson assured him the move would not.

The three new members are: engineer Bryan Kernohan, Trevor Pawson, a former candidate for the Stanhope trustee position, and Brian Plouffe, Pastor of Lakeside Baptist Church and father of a child with Down's Syndrome.

Speech therapist?

The board's administration will attempt to hire a full-time speech pathologist for the next school year. Currently the board employs one speech teacher and contracts $10,000 in speech pathology services from Five Counties Children's Centre.

The move would save the board an estimated $20,000 said director Brad Saunders and actually improve the current level of service. The board would not actually be hiring an additional teacher said Business Administrator Jim Bradley because the it is expecting several retirements. The new speech pathologist would allow the board to return the current speech teacher to regular teaching duties and the contract with Five Counties would not be renewed.

Redmen crack Norwood Knights' armour

Haliburton hockey team still unbeaten after beating Norwood 6-1, LCVI 4-2

by Andy Holloway

In a 6-1 game, strong goaltending is often overlooked as a key factor in the win.

However, the main reason the Haliburton Highlands Redmen were able to defeat the Norwood Knights last Wednesday by that score was goalie Todd McCracken.

For nearly two-thirds of the game, McCracken kept his mates in the game while they continually gave the puck away in their own end. The smaller, faster players of the Knights gave the Redmen defence a lot of problems, especially in getting the puck up the ice.

The Redmen started quickly enough scoring at 11:37 of the first period to take a 1-0 lead. From a face-off, Darren Johnston drew the puck back to the point where Derek Wilson blew a screen shot past Knights' goalie Jamie Gratton. The low shot just hit the inside right post and bounced into the net.

However, for the next 25 minutes the Redmen took a nap and left McCracken to fend for himself. The best stops during that stretch came two minutes into the second period when both Cory Leeming and Mark Stewart of the Knights were stone-walled during a scramble in front of the net.

The Redmen also ran into some penalty trouble with first Greg Stamp and then Curtis Bain going off for high-sticking. Bain would later have to be helped off the ice when he locked knees with Dave Cooper of the Knights in the third period.

The Knights finally broke through on their second power-play when Larmer slid a shot through McCracken's five-hole to tie the game at one.

The goal seemed to wake up the Redmen and they scored two goals within 1:17 to end the second period up 3-1. Gordie Shaw batted a shot into the right side of the net after a scramble in front of the net. Bill Bradley and Greg Stamp received assists on the play.

Cruising through the slot, Mark Stamp took a pass from Shaw who was behind the net and blasted a shot past Gratton. Andy Billings was also credited with an assist on the play.

In the third period the Redmen potted three more goals to Ouch. That smarts: Norwood Knights forward Kirk Stewart takes a chunk out of a Haliburton player ice the game to go 5-0 for the season.

Darren Johnston scored the fourth Redmen goal after intercepting a pass deep in the Knights' zone. Johnston broke in alone and slid a hard back-hander into the net.

Bill Bradley scored the final two goals of the game, redirecting a shot from the point for the first goal. Then with seven while Redmen players and fans look on. The Redmen lost this bodycheck, but won the game 6-1 seconds left, Bradley took a pass from Shaw and deked Gratton for the final goal.

Earlier in the week, the Redmen beat the Lindsay Collegiate Spartans 4-2 in Lindsay for their fourth straight game.

Handloading rifles gaining acceptance

Hunters who have bagged a buck or downed a fat mallard with their own "home rolled" ammunition are likely to tell you that it adds a little extra to the hunting experience.

Handloading rifle and shotgun ammunition is gaining in popularity with every passing season and the reasons are varied.

For some, the savings over the cost of factory ammo is the major lure. But to realize much in the way of savings, the shooter must consider the cost of equipment and amortize it over the years of use it will get.

A handloaded box of rifle cartridges will range between 50 and 75 per cent of the factory loaded variety, depending on the components used. It doesn't take all that many boxes of shells to pay for a press, scale and a few other basic reloading accessories.

Another attraction is the variety of components available that the hunter can use to assemble the ideal "customized" load for his own particular rifle.

The handloader has so many more combinations to choose from than the shooter who buys his or her ammo "off the shelf."

As an example, the hunter who shoots a .308 Winchester calibre can choose locally from half a dozen or so brand names of factory loads, with three or four choices of bullet weight. He has no control over the powder type or charge, primer or, in most cases, the bullet style (although many manufacturers offer specialty bullets in their ammunition for a premium price). On the other hand, if you roll your own, you can select from a dozen or more powders, four or five brands of primer and two or three dozen bullets of varying weights and styles. With this array, the handloader can tailor his or her loads with a specific target in mind or produce an all-around load that will do the job in any situation likely to be encountered, from brush country hunting to long range target shooting.

The third reason for handloading is to wring the utmost in accuracy from a given rifle. A patient handloader can often turn a rifle that shoots mediocre groups into a tack-driver by experimenting with different components and/or slight variations in powder charges (within very defined limitations). By observing a few basic safety precautions, the handling of gunpowder and primers is no more dangerous than working with power tools or refuelling the tank of an outboard motor.

With the increasing interest in reloading, the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is planning a two-part reloading seminar for members and non-members alike. For anyone interested in the subject of rifle or shotgun ammunition handloading, the course will be held on two consecutive Wednesday evenings in January (the 15th and 22nd) from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

The course is designed for the beginner and will give the students the basic knowledge

by Jerry Grozelle

to get him or her started in this interesting hobby. It will be a hands-on course and the participants will have the chance to turn out some ammunition for the range or hunting field.

Although the course will be available to non-members of the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association, if the response is high, Association members will be given preference on a first come, first served basis. The venue will depend on the number of people who register. For more information or to register, contact Peter Hynard at 286-1071. A registration fee of $20 will apply to non-members. By reloading, the shooter is likely to do more shooting and become more proficient in the process.

Home Hardware's Hunter, Howe head off Stamp

Tim Hunter scored five times to lead Home Hardware to an 11-1 thrashing of Sid Stamp Fuels in last Monday's Minden Men's Recreational hockey action.

For the second week in a row, Sid Stamp was stomped on by the opposition. In their last two games Sid Stamp has been outscored 19-3 and is now winless in four starts.

Besides Hunter's goals, Home Hardware received an eight point performance, including four goals, by Jeff Howe and a two goal effort from Ron May.

The game was never in doubt as Home Hardware built up a three goal lead before Sid Stamp scored on a goal by Scott Hamilton with an assist from Brent Flood. Before the end of the first period, that lead had been increased to 7-1.

All of the scoring in the first period was done by Hunter and Howe who each scored natural hat tricks with Hunter adding another one to end the period.

Receiving assists on those goals were John Ballantyne with three, John Fedeski and Ted Vasey with two and Issac Brannigan with a single.

The second period was no different as Home Hardware continued to dominate. Hunter and May with two and a single from Howe rounded out the scoring. Both of May's goals were unassisted while John Fedeski received his third assist on Hunter's lone tally.

With the win, Home Hardware remains undefeated on the season with two wins and two ties, but in a tie for second spot with Hartwick.

In a penalty-filled game, KDD downed The Times 3-1 after scoring two unanswered goals in the third period.

With the score tied at one, KDD's Andy McKenzie scored with an assist from Scott Murison. Bruce Denniston then scored an insurance marker for KDD and they went on to their third straight win. Assisting on Denniston's goal were McKenzie and Scott Danilko.

Earlier in the second period, KDD had taken a 1-0 lead when Jeff Stamp scored an unassisted goal. However, Eldon Bull of The Times tied it back up after scoring with assists to Dennis McKee and Doug Allison.

During the game eleven penalties were called including three high-sticking calls.

With their second straight loss, The Times remained in fifth place. KDD is now tied for second spot.

In the night's third game, league-leading Hartwick received shut-out goaltending from Paul Humber and three points from Glen Hall to down Westside 4-0.

Gary Harrison scored, with assists to Greg Newell and Hall, in the first period to set Hartwick on the right path. Hall then scored a goal of his own with assists going to Ben Manuge and Paul Walker and Hartwick was up 2-0 going into the second period.

Harrison scored his second goal of the game with assists from Hall, his third point, and Art Goard to give Hartwick a three goal lead. Greg Newell rounded out the scoring with an unassisted goal later in the period.

The win kept Hartwick in first place, one point ahead of Home Hardware and KDD. Hartwick is still undefeated on the season with their only non-win coming in a tie against Home Hardware. Westside remained in third place with the loss, one point ahead of The Times.

Minden area skaters score well at Sectionals

Whitby Skating Club hosted this year's Eastern Ontario Sectional Competition in which Minden was fortunate to have seven skaters competing.

This competition provides the spectator with a very entertaining array of talent and skill.

The Minden Skating Club had a number of good performances, including two firsts at the competition.

Andrea Pawluch finished first in the Novice Competitive division and after the short and long programs finished 11th overall. Janene Garbutt finished first in the freestyle flight and fifth in the semi-finals in the Pre-Novice Ladies Flight 3.

Tristan Pawluch finished seventh in the figures, eighth in the freestyle which was good enough for ninth overall at the Juvenile Men's level. Katrina Matysek took 12th in the freestyle skate at the Juvenile Ladies-Flight 3 level. Pawluch and Matysek then combined to finish fourth in flight in the Juvenile Pairs division.

Pawluch then teamed up with Julie Vanderlip to finish sixth in the Juvenile Dance.

In the Pre-Novice Ladies - Flight 4 level, Kristi Barkwell finished ninth. Finally, Marita Schrader finished eighth in the Pre-Novice Ladies - Flight 9.

Redmen on a roll

The game was rough with 30 minutes in penalties being handed out, 18 of them to the Redmen.

Scoring for the Redmen in order were Jonathan Bishop, Derek Wilson, Bill Bradley and Greg Stamp. Stamp and Bradley were also credited with assists as were Mark Stamp, Darren Johnston, Gordie Shaw and Jeff Black.

The Lindsay goals were scored by Jason Teal and Kevin West.

The Redmen face off against Kenner Collegiate tonight (Monday) in Peterborough before returning home on Wednesday to play St. Peter's at 7:30 p.m. This weekend, the Redmen travel to Lake Placid for a tournament.

Members from the Minden Skating Club who posted good results in a competition at the Sectionals in Whitby on November 19-22 are: (clockwise from

Applications are invited from interested citizens of the communities served by Minden Hospital to sit on the Minden Community Advisory Committee.

The Committee's purpose is to educate and co-ordinate the citizens as to the desperate position the hospital is in and to initiate a citizens plan of action to try to save the hospital.

Serving up a good time

Volleyball teams from Archie Stouffer Elementary School performed well at the annual J.D. Hodgson Elementary School tournament on November 25.

The Stouffer boys' team went to the semi-finals before bowing out to Dunsford in two straight, 15-4, 15-12. While the Stouffer girls did not get quite as far as the boys did, they still had a lot of fun against nine teams from around the area including Peterborough and Victoria County area schools.

Haliburton's teams had less success, neither of the two teams entered in each of the boys and girls divisions made it to the play-offs.

Each team played against four others in an effort to qualify for the division semi-finals. The winners of each division then met in the tournament finals. On the boys side, Dunsford lost to Mariposa 15-13, 15-10 while on the girls side, Fenelon Falls beat Dunsford 15-12, 10-15 16-14.

Organizers expressed a note of appreciation for the tremendous officiating job done by students from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. They also noted the tournament would not have been possible without the support of players and coaches, food sellers, scorekeepers, parent and teacher volunteers. Everyone is looking forward to next year, when perhaps 24 teams will be competing.

Speed skating

In the late 1920s Peg Pettinger was one of Canada's best short track skaters. Last winter's Olympic enthusiasm helped revive some of the memories of her youthful days as a champion.

by Russ Duhaime

MILLIONS of viewers enjoyed their first taste of short-track speed skating when it was introduced as an Olympic sport for the first time last Winter. Canadians, especially, watched with pride as their women's relay team led by Sylvie Bernier outpaced the powerful Chinese team to capture the gold.

This "new" sport proved beyond a doubt that it has all the ingredients to earn a lasting place in the Olympics. The speed, finesse and exciting spills captivated viewers, vaulting the sport into the Olympic limelight.

Like the millions who watched, nail biting, as their skaters sped around the rink, Peg Pettinger was glued to the set. Unlike most, though, Pettinger could taste the tension of the starting line. She could feel and hear the long blades cutting the ice as the skaters leaned into the corners.

"I was living every minute of it watching those skaters. I was so thrilled and I just knew exactly how they felt."

Although most people had never heard of the sport before last winter, short-track speed skating has been around since arenas were first built to enclose natural ice arenas. And in those early days of the sport, 15-year-old Peggy McIntosh from the Ossington racing club was one of the top names on the Canadian circuit.

An article in the Toronto Telegram put it simply:

*"Little Peggy McIntosh
no bigger than a minute*

But when her blades begin to flash the other girls aren't in it."

At her home on Country Lane in Lutterworth Township, Peg (McIntosh) Pettinger remembers the thrills and spills of her youth on the ice. She remembers Harold Ballard firing the starting pistol for many of the races.

Standing tall on her blades, "little Peggy McIntosh" poses in the early 1930s beside a trophy case filled with her medals. The medals, which were displayed at the Ossington racing club are now in the possession of the Pettingers' grandson, Paul.

And she remembers her "friendly enemy", Leila Brooks-Potter.

Pettinger and Brooks-Potter were the top skaters of the day and they were rivals. Pettinger represented the Ossington club, while Brooks-Potter skated out of the Old Orchard club. Pettinger represented CCM skates and Brooks-Potter was sponsored by Ballard skates. Pettinger was small and speedy, while Brooks-Potter had the endurance for the longer races.

"We were two of the best in Toronto," said Pettinger. On the ice they were enemies, but off the ice they were friends. And when Canada was asked to send skaters to New York City for a race in Madison Square Gardens, the rivals became teammates.

"There were four of us who went to New York to compete for Canada," said Pettinger. She and Brooks-Potter were two women chosen and they had little doubt about their chances of winning. "We knew we would beat those Americans," she said. After all, Canadians excel at ice sports.

Unfortunately, they never got the chance to prove their superiority. A warm spell in New York turned the natural ice surface at Madison Square Gardens into a giant puddle. Pettinger said the Canadians skated at the Gardens for exhibition, but the rink was far too wet for a competitive skate. The trip to New York was the closest Pettinger ever came to international competition. At the time, speed skating was not an Olympic sport and there were no international organizations to arrange for international competitions.

However, Pettinger did manage to win more than her share of medals on Canadian ice. In her brief speed skating career, Pettinger managed to fill an entire trophy case with medals, six of them gold. Her greatest glory was in winning the Ballard Cup.

At the time, the Ballard Cup was one of the top trophies a young skater could hope to win. To win this prestigious award, a skater had to collect enough points from three separate events -- a sprint, middle and long distance race. At 15 years of age, Pettinger outpaced all other skaters, including Brooks-Potter, to bring the cup back to the Ossington racing club for one season. In order to keep the trophy, though, a skater had to win it two years in a row. Pettinger turned 16 just weeks before the event the following year, which disqualified her from the competition.

Of all the trophies and medals she has won, though, Pettinger said none are as cherished as the pride she felt when she turned her trophy case over to her grandson Paul.

One day Paul was looking at the medals which were stored in a box in Pettinger's basement. He was about seven years old at the time and Pettinger says he was thrilled with the medals.

"I asked if he'd like to have them and I'll never forget the expression on that boy's face. He was so thrilled.

"You know, that was the best medal I ever received... the expression on that boy's face." Paul, now 22, still has that trophy case proudly displayed at his parents' house in Bridgenorth.

Ed Pettinger takes a great deal of pride in Peg's past accomplishments.

HHSS students working for a new Camelot

The Highland's Little Theatre has been working for over a year on a huge production of the musical "Camelot" which premiered on November 27. Many very talented individuals have been working until the wee hours of the morning to learn dance steps, lines and cues. Those involved in the production are gearing up for a great opening night performance. Included in the list of talented cast are six students of HHSS.

Sarah Levis, who is the youngest of the highschool participants is in grade 10 and is 15 years of age. Sarah has been a member of the Drama Club at the highschool for two years and made her name known in the school with her brilliant piano playing and acting skills showcased during Talent Night last year. She had a leading role in the one act play at Talent Night and is looking forward to acting again in Camelot. Sarah, along with the other girls from HHSS, is in the Ballet Chorus.

Ted O'Connell, who is 16 years old and in grade 11, has been involved in the Drama Club for three years. He has appeared at Talent Night and gained recognition last year for his portrayal of Hero in the Drama Club's production of A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum. Ted also won the Drama Club Contribution award at Awards Night this year. He will appear in Camelot as a knight of the round table. Ted says that one of the best things about being involved in the production is getting the chance to work with the older, more experienced cast members.

Also playing a knight of the round table is 17 year old Ron Reid. Some of you may remember Ron from his excellent performance as Pseudolus in A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum. He says that working on Camelot has been a learning experience and that he's enjoyed working with such a talented group of actors.

Grade 10 student Anna Edwards has been a member of the HHSS Drama Club for 3 years and has taken the school by storm with her excellent singing voice and acting abilities.

Rebecca Felts will appear in the Ballet Chorus along with Sarah and Anna. Although Rebecca has never been involved with the Drama Club, she proved her acting abilities when she played the role of an abused teenager in her drama class's production of the play The Mirror Game last year.

Also lending his musical talents to the production is Rhys

Gray, who sounds the trumpet fanfares at various times. Rhys is also a member of the court of Camelot and serves as a squire to King Arthur as he prepares himself for battle in the closing scenes.

Camelot was performed in the auditorium at HHSS on November 27, 28 and 29. Two more performances are planned for December 4 and 5. These performances will all take place in the evening.

This promises to be an exciting experience for both the performers and the audience, so don't miss it.

To everyone involved in Camelot and especially those from the highschool, "Break a leg"!

Uphill skiing:

Cross-country skiers facing difficult battle to get their sport into the forefront of Canadian consciousness

by Andy Holloway

Deep in the bush, hidden behind houses, resorts and trees, six men armed with chainsaws are attempting to clear a pathway through a section of Haliburton County.

Much of the work is being done on private property, but with the consent of the land owners who are willing to put up with the blare of chainsaws and the sound of falling trees.

The cutting proceeds quickly and quietly, or at least as quietly as chainsaws allow, and most of it should be done by the time the annual blanket of snow covers the county.

Like much of the action that occurs with cross-country skiing, the work being done by the Nordic Trails Association is hidden from the sight of passers-by. This lack of visibility is one of the strongest elements working against cross-country advocates who are trying to gain a stronger foothold in the winter tourism market.

Once one of the fastest rising sports in popularity, cross-country skiing is making another run up the charts. Over the past two years, cross-country skiing has jumped from 21st to 12th in terms of its level of growth in the world of sports.

However, increasing the sport beyond its current level of popularity will take a concerted effort from the many trail organizations around the province. Not only does it have to compete against winter activities like hockey and snowmobiling, but it also has to contend with its powerful cousin, Alpine skiing.

"We always seem to be somebody's poor cousin, whether it is snowmobiling or downhill skiing," says Nordic Trails president John Teljeur.

The success of the Crazy Canucks during the 1980s brought downhill skiing to the forefront of Canadian sports, taking over front pages and boosting its popularity. While Canadians were soon competitive internationally in the downhill, they never really came close to beating the Scandinavians in cross-country. Proof of Alpine skiing's popularity is that the Ontario Ski Resort Association, an umbrella group for both downhill and cross-country skiing, gets two thirds of its revenues from downhill operators despite the fact there are fewer of them.

However, Teljeur says a new style of skiing, skate skiing, which uses a stride similar to that of skaters, may change all of that.

The Nordic Trails Association is widening some of their trails in the county. Here four of the six crew members cut up and remove pieces of a felled tree on the Jim Beef Trail. The work is not expected to be finished until January 8.

"Canada has never had much success with traditional cross-country skiing. We've had a few success stories but not many," says Teljeur. "Skate skiing is one of the things Canadians could excel at because we're used to that kind of stride."

The rise of skate skiing is one of the reasons many of the trails that the Nordic Trails Association operates have to be widened. The Jim Beef Trail which is where the crew was working last Thursday is one of the trails being widened to allow for skate-skiing. The trail is an important one, says Teljeur, because it connects Glebe Park with the World Class course.

Part of the work will later involve a bulldozer, the use of which was donated by Dysart Council, to level out the trails. The job, unlike most of the work done by the association is not volunteer. The five men crew was hired as part of a make-work campaign done by the employment centre and the association. Other jobs like trail wardening or grooming are also paid positions, but the bulk of the work is voluntary.

Dysart Council also recently gave the association permission to light up the trail in Glebe Park. The trail will be the first lighted night-skiing trail in the county and one of only a few across the province.

"It's something we're not only doing for ourselves," says Teljeur, "But it's also for the community. Any community group that wants to use it can and all they have to pay is for the hydro."

"Just because you're a non-profit group doesn't mean you have to go bankrupt."

One of the groups that should be interested in using the lights is the Legion which puts on the annual Bluegrass Festival during the summer. The lights, says Teljeur, should improve the safety level at the show as well as providing light for any night-time act.

Getting the spotlight on cross-country skiing and keeping it there should prove to be more difficult. The main problem is the lack of visibility that results when the best action occurs in the bush away from passing motorists and people.

"You can see snowmobilers, they're out in the open crossing road allowances and driving along roads, but with skiing everything is in the bush," says Teljeur. "There is a higher profile to the snowmobile clubs."

Without a high profile it is sometimes hard to get the point across to people that cross-country skiing is a major tourist attraction. Teljeur points to a study undertaken by the association that showed the sport brought $1.5 million in revenues in 1990 into the county to illustrate how important the sport is.

Association blazing a new trail

"At one council meeting I went to a couple of years ago a councillor said he thought we went out of business two years ago," says Teljeur, showing how people even in this county are not aware of the association and its trail system.

To that end the association is putting on a membership blitz distributing 8,000 flyers to homes and another 1,000 flyers to area businesses in an effort to increase the profile of the association in its home county. Last year, a similar but smaller drive worked well with membership jumping by 50 per cent.

However, many of the members are located near Haliburton Village and nearly all of the business members are in and around that same area. This fact bothers Teljeur because at the very least it makes it harder to improve the Minden trails.

"Every year we sit down to decide what we're going to do because we only have so much money and we have to put it where the interest is," says Teljeur. He also notes there are two property owners in the Minden area who are against any work being done on the trails on their land which means the whole trail suffers.

"We would like to have a Minden to Haliburton trail race, but as it stands right now the Minden trail will probably not be opened. We are going to do whatever we can to get it open, but when your options are limited you don't know what's going to happen."

One race that will happen this year is the Ontario Federation of Schools Athletic Associations' Nordic ski finals which is expected to bring 800 skiers into the area for two days. The race was last held in the county four years ago, but several problems prevented a repeat showing until this year.

However, the association's trails are some of the best in the province. And because the county is centrally located, the OFSAA finals could be held here on a more regular basis.

In fact, a study on cross-country by Mike Exall of Seneca College stated that the association's trail system is one of the best in Canada, but is also one of the most underutilized in Ontario. The 1990 study states that the "system is unique in Ontario and Canada" and "no other system of this type exists in Eastern Canada." It recommended that the province should regard the system as a major resource and that the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation should supply extensive support, which has not really materialized as of yet.

The association has been around since 1985 when a move was made to join the Ski Club and the tourism associations. Previous to that, The Kashawigamog Tourism Association

"blazed" a number of trails and linked them up with trails in Minden, Stanhope and Glebe Park in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

In 1985, Nordic Trails ran about 30 kilometers of trails and was an arm of the Chamber of Commerce. Over the years it has evolved into its own association, says Teljeur, but with close ties to the chamber.

Five years later, the association took over the trails at the Leslie Frost Centre south of Dorset and has operated them since in conjunction with the Ministry of Natural Resources.

"It was a good trail and it was in jeopardy of closing. Now it is an important part of our trail system and our revenues," says Teljeur.

The union between the association and the MNR is a rare occurrence of government and business working together, something which does not happen enough, says Teljeur.

The government, on one hand, is saying you should bring in more tourists and, on the other hand they're saying but we're not going to help you do it"

Nordic Trails Association president John Teljeur (left) hears what foreman Glen Burton has to say about the progress of the trail blazing crew.

"The government, on one hand, is saying you should bring in more tourists and, on the other, hand they're saying but we're not going to help you do it."

Last year, 16 areas in Ontario dropped out of cross-country skiing due to a lack of funds. It is a weeding out process which may result in better trails for skiers in the future, but is slowing down the progress in the industry.

"We're losing some of the dead wood, but we're also losing some of our clout along with it," says Teljeur. "Not that we had much clout to start with."

Still, the work on the county's trails will continue. Next year, Teljeur says the association hopes to double its efforts in that area. However, the most important work is getting the word out to cross-country skiers in the province. There are three million skiers in the province, but Teljeur estimates only 20 per cent of them are active.

"We've got to get out the Joe Blows who have skis in their garage, but who haven't been out in four years."

"As far as getting the recognition, it's going to take time, hopefully not too much time."

Polished performance by personable duo

by Susan Wilson

Cathy and Stephen Rollins, flutist and guitarist respectively, kicked off the 13th season of the Haliburton Highlands Concert Series a week ago Sunday with a polished and personable performance at the Legion Hall in Haliburton.

By their very nature, both the guitar and the flute are instruments of delicacy, with limited range in terms of volume. The Rollins worked expressively within these natural limitations, discovering the highs and lows of instrumental sound and emotional intensity. Their control of these aspects of the music and their consistently tight ensemble playing spoke volumes about their long experience on the concert stage.

The Rollins' program offered a wide variety of short selections designed to appeal to every taste, from the familiar ("Habanera" from Bizet's Carmen) to the exotic (Haru No Umi from Japan). There was the opening obligatory bow in the direction of the classical European repertoire in the form of Vivaldi's Andante and Corrente, a smattering of Spanish or Spanish-influenced works, a number of traditional pieces from the folk repertoire of past centuries, and works by contemporary composers.

In a program of such musical variety and consistent standards, it would be tedious to offer a comment on each work performed. But some are worthy of special comment. The first of Eric Satie's three hypnotic Gymnopédies (transcribed by Stephen Rollins from the original for piano) was taken at a tempo that, while relaxing, avoided the temptation of too slow and soppy a pace.

The suite of three tangos by Piazzola — a composer unknown north of the Rio Grande, but acknowledged "King of the Tango" in his native Argentina — showed three contrasting moods of this exotic dance. The first and third exhibited the flamboyance and exuberance we associate with the tango and gave Cathy Rollins a chance to show off the dexterity of her tongue and her fingers. The second tango was far less brittle and brilliant — warmer, moodier, sadder.

Moody and evocative in a different way was King Street Suite, one of two guitar solos written by Don Ross, an award-winning Canadian guitarist and a friend of the Rollins. This suite gave Stephen a chance to explore the haunting, tender world of guitar harmonics. Later on, Rollins' arrangement of Danny Boy gave new spine and interest to this over-familiar folk song.

The transcription of Chopin's Piano Prelude No. 4 provided another example of Cathy Rollins' fine breath control and expressive phrasing. The Entr'acte by Ibert that concluded the concert is a flashy staple of the flute-and-guitar repertoire and both the Rollins took advantage of the virtuoso opportunities it offers.

The Rollins also shared responsibility for the spoken introductions to the pieces they performed. Such spoken introductions are part of what make concert series like this particularly valuable, making the performers more real and human and the music more understandable to the audience. Over the past decade, classical musicians have become more and more unbending and effective in this regard.

Once again, the years the Rollins have spent on stage since their graduation in 1977 from the Faculty of Music at the University of Ottawa showed to advantage. They were both relaxed, spontaneous, and accomplished in their comments; the suitable acoustics of the Legion made it very easy to hear them.

At the conclusion of the concert, Stephen Rollins took a moment to pay tribute to the organizers of the concert series for their hard and excellent work and for their hospitality. It must be recognized that organizations such as the Haliburton Highlands Concert Series play a vital two-fold role. They bring live classical music of high calibre to local audiences and they expand the range of audiences that professional musicians are able to reach. For this, they deserve our commendation and support.

The Haliburton Concert Series will present two more concerts this season: the duo piano team of Popv and Vona on Sunday, February 28; and Four West (piano cello, soprano, and flute) on Sunday, March 28. All concerts start at 7:30 p.m. and are held in the Haliburton Legion on Mountain Street. For information and tickets, call Eleanor Cooper at 754-2278.

Recycling anti-freeze

By recycling your anti-freeze you could help the environment and help children with physical disabilities.

Over 600 service facilities across Canada offer the X-Tend Mark X system which filters old anti-freeze chemically and turns it into good-as-new condition. The only dealer in Haliburton County is Rusty's Auto Service in Minden.

For every customer who uses the system, Wynn's Canada Limited through its X-Tend a Hand program will contribute $1 to The Easter Seal Society.

The Easter Seal Society is a non-profit organization which helps children with physical disabilities achieve maximum independence and full integration into all aspects of life.

License renewal period changes

If you are an Ontario driver you'll be making fewer trips to the licence office to renew your driver's licence as a result of a Ministry of Transportation initiative to extend the renewal period.

"Changing the renewal period is one way we are taking steps to improve customer service and make the best use of ministry resources," said Transportation Minister Gilles Pouliot.

Currently, Ontario's six million licensed drivers must renew their licence every three years. The change in the renewal period goes into effect for drivers whose licences expire on or after January 20, 1993. It will take seven years for the change to affect all drivers.

The renewal process will remain the same for most types of licences. People with licences to drive tractor-trailers, buses, trucks and ambulances will still be required to have medical examinations every three years.

The annual fee for a driver's licence remains unchanged at $10 per year. Notification of an upcoming renewal with the fee will continue to be sent out well in advance of the expiry date of a licence.

JobsOntario invests $350,000 into area

JobsOntario Capital is investing an additional $350,000 in job creation and economic renewal in the riding of Victoria Haliburton, announced area MPP Dennis Drainville last week.

Two construction and repair projects will create the equivalent of one year's employment for four people.

The projects are: installation of a new air-conditioning and ventilation system in the Lindsay Jail and repairs to the mechanical and carpentry shop that is part of the Ministry of Natural Resources district office in Minden.

"These projects will provide an immediate boost to construction employment as part of a coordinated effort to create jobs and make a strong contribution to local economic renewal," said Drainville.

"This government is working hard to create jobs and do it now, with an emphasis on projects that can be completed over the next four months," said Government Services Minister Fred Wilson, whose ministry will coordinate both of the projects.

JobsOntario Capital is a five year, $2.3 billion initiative by the province to support jobs and economic restructuring, promote community and social progress and protect the environment.

Cakes for Cures fund campaign begins

The Victoria Haliburton chapter of the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation of Canada has begun its annual "Cakes for Cures" fundraising campaign.

According to Chapter president and Cake Campaign co-ordinator, Brent Rice, "Last year our chapter sold 684 cakes - a 66 percent increase over 1990 sales and the largest increase in sales by an Ontario chapter."

"With everyone's help we are hoping to increase our sales substantially again this year."

The "Cakes for Cures" campaign helps to raise much needed money for medical research into the cause of and cure for Crohn's Disease and Ulcerative Colitis. These painful inflammatory bowel diseases can strike anyone, anytime and affect approximately 200,000 Canadians.

Anyone who would be interested in purchasing a cake or in helping to sell cakes, may call Gerry Vandenbrink at 286-3426.

Legion's Scottish dance held by candlelight

There was a good turn-out for the Scottish dance on November 21 regardless of hydro. Earl Cooper played the bagpipes performing lots of Scottish favourites. Scottish dancers came from Haliburton to entertain. I was told it looked like the inside of an old cattle barn with all of the candles and lanterns. Music came out loud and clear from a ghetto blaster and the DJ took over at 10:30 p.m. when the lights came back on. Rene Codlin won the barley prize. All in all, everyone had a great time.

Poppies were a success again this year. To all who wore poppies and gave volunteer hours, donations, etc., our sincere thanks.

Remembrance Day at the school was a day to remember. The children were so well behaved and paid attention as our Comrades explained about war to them. Lest We Forget. It was nice to see our Ladies Auxilliary colour party there. They made us proud.

Some of our veterans and men's colour party joined Hali-

burton 129 for their parade.

Our 636 parade and remembrance was held on November 8 and there was a good turnout. All went back to the legion for a lunch put on by Terry Campbell and Pat McMurter. Thank you ladies.

Our thoughts are with Helen Johnson and Jim Grant who are on our sick list.

Attention veterans: anyone wanting answers on veteran's affairs should contact veteran service officer Bud Murray at 489-2657.

Single veteran's appreciation dinner will be held on December 15.

Trivia Nite - December 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Don't forget our New Year's Eve Party, December 31. Refreshments, hats, horns and spot prizes. Cost is $30 a couple. For tickets contact Lois Adamson, Frank Codlin or Ken Walsh.

General meeting is on December 2.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped me during the year and to wish all a blessed Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING REGARDING PROPOSED OFFICIAL PLAN AND ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

Please be advised that the Corporation of the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden will be holding a Public Meeting pursuant of Sections 17 and 34 of the Planning Act (1990) to consider applications for an Official Plan Amendment and an Amendment to Zoning By-law No. 86-26 and Zoning By-law No. 14-67.

The purpose of the Official Plan Amendment is to redesignate the lands from the Open Space designation to the Village Residential designation.

The purpose of the Zoning By-law Amendments is to re-zone the subject property from the Institutional Zoning to a special Institutional Zone which would allow the construction of a 36 unit supportive housing development in addition to the other uses permitted in the Institutional Zone.

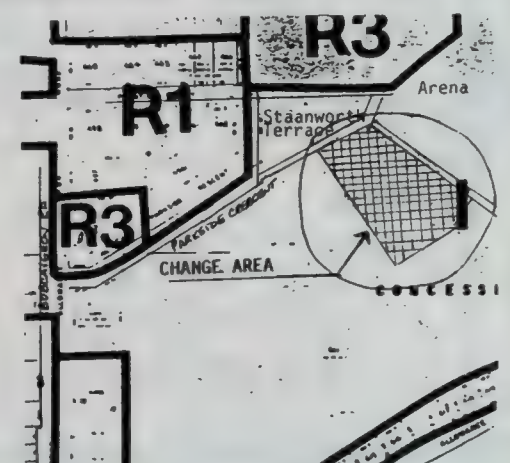

A key map showing the location of the lands affected by this amendment is attached to this notice.

The Public Meeting will be held at 7:00 p.m. on December 17, 1992 at the Municipal Office in Minden.

Specialists needed, but diversity lacking

Expertise is an unavoidable necessity in our complex and multi-layered society. I, for example, have neither the time nor the ability to even try to fix the transmission of my car, a television set or my lap-top computer. But this specialization makes us more dependent on others and less able to control the factors that impinge on our lives.

When it comes to the life-support systems of the planet, few people, if any, have the breadth and depth of knowledge to be credible experts. Instead, we look at the world in fragments and develop some expertise on smaller parts of the biosphere such as oceans, forests or the atmosphere. But what is really needed is a lot more simple common sense.

I have met many people who lack specialized training but who have become very knowledgeable and raise penetrating and important questions about the impact of human activity on the environment. Yet they are often dismissed because they lack proper credentials even though "experts" sometimes are too specialized to see the obvious.

Take economics. Because air, water, soil and biological diversity are considered "externalities" to the economy and because sustainability, on human values and future generations are not factored into the "dismal science", economics lies at the heart of the planetary crisis. But it is encrusted with jargon and specialized knowledge and jealously guarded by the cognoscenti.

Even though economists can hardly claim expertise when their field impacts on the environment, they often tell critics of the destructive ecological consequences of conventional economic practice, "You don't know what you're talking about."

So for the next few weeks, let's hear what some people who are experts in economics have to say. We'll start with a classic illustration of the economic perspective with Julian Simon, an economics professor at the University of Maryland.

He was a highly influential member of President Ronald Reagan's Council of Economic Advisors. In Simon's book "The Ultimate Resource", he revels in human creativity. As an example of the basis for his optimism, he said in an interview last summer, that coal and copper were nothing but black or shiny rocks, respectively, until people thought of ways to exploit them.

"All these resources come out of our minds. This is where the resources are rather than in the ground or in the air."

But if you ask Simon about scarcity of finite resources, he retorts, "What scarcity?" Pointing out that life expectancy over the past two centuries has risen from 30 to over 70 years in industrialized nations, he says, "All resources have been getting more available rather than more scarce...the prices of all natural resources have been falling rather than increasing. And our air and our water in our rich countries have been getting cleaner rather than dirtier over the past decades. So all the facts show us things have been getting better with respect to human welfare rather than worse."

Taking oil as an example, Simon says there are vast amounts to be recovered simply by being more efficient and "if we want it, we can make more oil" using energy from the sun and carbon dioxide so that "even oil, even energy is not finite in any meaningful sense."

Since the Second World War, there has been an unprecedented increase in demand of living, utilization of resources and human population. Noting their parallel rise, Simon concludes "there's no known reason why this cannot go on forever."

"There is no population problem," he says, because more people means more human minds, so life will only get better and better.

He believes there are no limits to growth so long as there are creative people with challenges to motivate them.

If we ever do exhaust finite resources, Simon says, people will come up with alternatives or we can travel to other parts of the universe to find what we need.

He concludes: "On our own planet, we have all the resources, and even all the knowledge that we would ever need to sustain more and more people forever. We don't need to go to the other planets or to space for that. But what we need (them) for is to provide us challenges that call out the best of our human spirit. To allow us to explore and to find excitement of the mind and of the soul. That's what we need them for."

Simon's is a make-believe world built on the fantasy of infallible and inexorable improvement of the human condition through our sheer intellect. He fails to acknowledge human ignorance of the interconnectedness of all parts of the fabric of life or the long-term repercussions of what is an aberrant blip of rising number and consumption. Next week we'll hear from an economist with a very different perspective.

Ileitis name-changes but the search for a cure continues

Many times over the past several years, the possibility of changing the name of the Canadian Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis has been discussed.

In October of this year, delegates from chapters across Canada voted overwhelmingly in favour of changing the name to the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation of Canada. This change will be phased in over a period of time so that there will be no appreciable extra cost involved.

According to Cheryl McDonald, Publicity Chairperson for the Victoria Haliburton chapter, the change was made for a couple of reasons. "The name 'Crohn's' is more understandable to patients and is more commonly used by physicians to describe this ailment than is 'ileitis'. Furthermore, the Canadian Foundation remained only one of two inflammatory bowel disease organizations in the world that did not include the word 'Crohn's' in its name."

Despite the name change the foundation remains a voluntary, non-profit organization dedicated to finding the cause of and cure for inflammatory bowel disease by funding medical research; and to providing education programs for patients and their families, health professionals and the general public.

Both patients and non-sufferers are encouraged to join the Foundation for an annual, tax deductible fee of only $20. This membership entitles people to special benefits including access to the chapter's library of books, publications, video tapes and other reference materials; various publications from the National, Regional and local offices etc.

Also, the chapter is always looking for volunteers to help with their many fundraising activities.

For more information about the foundation, membership or volunteering, please call the Chapter President, Brent Rice at 887-3460 or 328-3891.

Johnsons' sing-song of hymns entertain

Family of singers cheer up residents' rainy Saturday

It certainly helped to cheer our Saturday when Chris and Ray Johnson came to entertain us with a beautiful sing-song of hymns. We enjoyed the singing and music immensely. They were accompanied by their children Jeremy and Noelle. Thanks to each of you.

Sunday we had an hour of book reading by Mary Guillemin. We thank her and wish her success and health.

In the evening, Chapel was conducted by Rev. Burgess with Louise Leonard playing the organ. We truly thank them both. Monday Silver's Clothing were here with a good selection of clothing. Everyone looks forward to their visit.

We were glad to see Evelyn Coleman back after the summer.

Tom McAllister showed the movies Monday evening. They were "Land of the Loons" and "Mandy's Grandmother". Thank you, Tom.

Tuesday morning Chapel service was in the charge of Evelyn Coleman. I am sure everyone learned something to comfort them. Thanks Evelyn.

Tuesday morning Jean Davies and a friend took Lillian Davidson and I to town to shop. It was an appreciated change and we thank Jean and friend heartily.

In the afternoon we played Bingo in the auditorium for prizes. Gregg Sawyer called and kept things in order. We enjoyed it.

Wednesday morning Dottie Muirhead read the newspapers. Doris Robertson and Linda Fry did the Christmas shopping for Hyland Crest Auxiliary.

The Minden Agricultural Society ladies provided and served our Thursday tea party, and as expected, it was delicious and we sincerely thank them. The ladies involved were: Gwen Robinson, Heather Hope, Molly Freeman, Shirley Horsley, Zetta Little, and Mary Cox.

Brandon Jarvis and Valerie Patterson came after school Thursday and had dinner with Winnie Barnum and Lula Ferrill. At 6:30 they called bingo for our Thursday night bingo, for which we thank them for a good job.

Friday at noon Dick Kirkwood took Lola Prentice, Grace Coburn and I to the Minden United Church Christmas Bazaar and lunch. We really enjoyed the delicious soup, cookies, squares and all that goes with them. We met many people we knew and it was great.

Friday being Happy Hour we were entertained by Charlie Hadley on the mandolin and Lloyd Madill, guitar. Doris Robertson accompanied them on the piano. To make the afternoon more enjoyable Dottie Muirhead donated a large pan of lovely squares. The volunteer attendants were Don and Ellen Holden. Thanks to all who took part.

Happy Birthday to Mable Buttery whose birthday was November 23 and Mary McKelvey who had a birthday November 24.

All our residents who were in the hospital are home again. Violet Thornett, Vera Archer and Lucy Burgess. Glad you are well enough to return.

Night skiing coming to Glebe Park

Night Skiing could be a reality at Glebe Park this winter. The Nordic Trails Association is hopeful that the Haliburton Legion and other Service Clubs will assist their ambitious project to light up a 1 km section of Cross Country trail at a cost of approximately $9000. This should be great news for local skiers, the High School Nordic Team and local resorts.

You can help by buying your Season's Pass Ski Membership now! Still the best value in Ontario - offering 100 km of Cross-Country trails in the Haliburton-Minden area, 23 km at the Leslie Frost Centre and 16 km at Camp Wanakita. Local experts predict record snowfalls and an early start to the ski season. So make sure you're ready - get your application through the Haliburton Cross Country Ski Club now or call 457-1640.

There's a Membership Fun Night on Thursday, December 10, 7:30 p.m. at PineStone Resort. Come on out, socialize, see the latest in equipment, swap your used gear, get your picture taken for the season's pass I.D. badge. See you there!

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Clarence Redner would like to thank all neighbours, friends and family who helped us through our most difficult time.

Your prayers, cards, flowers, food and memorial donations were appreciated. Special thanks to the St. Peter's A.C.W. for the lovely lunch served after the funeral. We wish to thank the Stanhope Volunteer Fire Department, the ambulance attendants, and the staff of the Minden Hospital.

Thank you to Rev. Brian Parker and to Gordon Monk and family for their assistance and kindness.

With sincere thanks, Hughena Redner and family.

We wish to thank all who brought happiness into the life of our Mother, Mary Oliver, especially family and friends who were so helpful over the past few months. To those who sent flowers, cards and to those who remembered us in their prayers.

We thank Father Brian Parker for his comforting words, also his wife, Joan, and daughter Amy, whom our Mother loved. Thank you, Bill Gliddon, for your music - she loved you too. Our thanks and praise to Dr. Harry Good, who was her Doctor for so many years. Your patience and understanding is so appreciated.

To the Nurses, and Nursing Aides at Hyland Crest Nursing Home, thanks for giving her comfort and love, and to all the Residents who helped in many ways.

We thank the Monk Funeral Home for their efficiency and understanding, and to all the helpers in the Parish of Minden, who worked to open our beloved St. Stephen's Church where the funeral was held. Also, thank you, A.C.W. members who provided lunch afterwards in St. Paul's Church Hall.

TO MOM, who remembered Queen Victoria, and who outlived so many neighbours and friends, who gave of herself and touched so many lives, your family salutes you!

Rosamond Coneybeare, Raymond Oliver and families.

Thanks to family and friends for visits, cards, phone calls, gifts, and food. Your love and prayers upheld me. Please keep me in your prayers in months ahead. God bless you for your loving care.
Erma Little.

IN MEMORIAM

ALTON: In loving memory of a dear Dad, Leslie Alton Sr. who passed away December 6, 1991.

Remembering you is easy, We do it every day, Missing you is a heartache, That never goes away. You had a smile for everyone, You had a heart of gold, You left us beautiful memories, This world could never hold. To us you were someone special, And no one will ever know, How much we really cared for you, And we miss you so.

Always loved and never forgotten by his daughter and son-in-law, Don & Kelly Flowersmith.

ALTON: In loving memory of a very special Papa, Leslie Alton Sr. who passed away December 6, 1991.

Each morning when we awake, We know that you are gone, No one knows the heartache, As we try to live on.

Our hearts still hurt in sadness, And secret tears still flow, What it meant to lose you, No one will ever know.

Our thoughts are always with you, Your place no one can fill,

In life we loved you dearly, In death we love you still.

They say that time heals everything, Perhaps for some that's true,

Our hurt is just as great today, As it was one year ago.

Every time we come home, We go to visit you.

Always loved and never forgotten by your loving grandsons

Shane and Nathen Flowersmith.

ALTON: In loving memory of a dear Husband, Leslie Alton Sr., who passed away December 6, 1991.

God looked around his garden, And found an empty space,

He then looked upon this earth, And saw your tired face.

He knew you were suffering, He knew you were in pain,

He knew you were too far gone And would never get well again.

He put his arms around you, And laid you to rest,

God's garden must be beautiful,

For He only takes the best.

Always loved and never forgotten by his wife Lillian.
